THE MEDIAN LEAGUE
(NORTHERN CAPE, WESTERN CAPE, EASTERN CAPE, KARAS AND HARDAP)

Ethno-nationalism has been the norm in this land for thousands of years.
Our ancestors, gathered, hunted, roamed this land seeking pastures, better climates for their dwellings, and interacted with their brothers and sisters, from various tribes, living in different parts of our homeland.
When black people invaded from the north, during the Bantu Expansion, they were divided into tribes. When white people invaded from the sea, during their sea voyages, they also were divided into tribes: the Dutch, the British, etc.
The land has known this for thousands of years. Even during the new Democratic Dispensation, racial and tribal identity remains strong. It is inherent in this land, and is a much ancient feature.
The Median League can not possibly go against this reality. The history of this land is ethno-nationalism. It is part of us. It is part of our collective lived experience. And we need to embrace this, knowing our past, and moving toward the future, each separately, yet part of something bigger.
What follows is the Christian Coloured (Khoikhoiin and San), contribution to what our homeland should be. The direction we should take. It is primarily, a political, economic, and social contribution, a proposal, if you'd like, for a new reality, as the world returns to the old ways.

The Median League is also born of fear. Not the fear of the weak, but the fear of the watchful — those who have seen the pattern repeat, and refuse to be surprised when it completes itself again. Churches have been bombed. Christians have been killed. Communities that were already marginalised have been targeted precisely because no powerful State existed to deter it, avenge it, or prevent it. The Coloured Christian people of the southwestern cape have no such State. They have no fortress, no flag, no army, no king. Every structural decision in this proposal — the military alliances, the state religions, the eligibility criteria, the surveillance architecture, the death penalties for treason and sedition — flows from that single, sober recognition: that a people without a State are a people at the mercy of whoever wishes them harm. The Median League is the answer to that vulnerability. It is a shield, built in the shape of a nation.

The Median League is a proposed nation on the extreme southwestern corner of the African continent.

It consists of the Northern Cape, Western Cape and Eastern Cape (Sarah Baartman District Municipality, as well as the Nelson Mandela Bay Municipality) in South Africa, and the Karas and Hardap regions in Namibia. It has a total land area of 942, 612 square km, along with the coastal territorial waters.

The Median League is a monarchy, with limited democracy, in the hands of the Karasai, where each ethnic group elects their own leaders.

The Median King, as Head of State, appoints the Chancellor, to head the government, who serves without a term limit, and can only be removed by the King himself. The King may be petitioned by the citizenry or, by the various legislative bodies such as the Governing Council, the House of Nobility and the Council of Representatives, who will need a 70% majority in each, to unseat the Median Chancellor, independent of the King.

THE KING: The Median King is Head of State. He appoints the Chancellor, who is the head of government. He also approves the Chancellor's appointments to various Cabinet posts.
The Median King appoints all Deputy Governors of the various Principalities, who alone have executive powers, and appoints the various secretaries.
The Deputy Governors are answerable to the King first, and the Governors second, although the various regional Princes can remove an elected Governor, they may not do so for the Deputy Governors.
The Median King represents the State in international affairs, along with the Chancellor and Secretary of Foreign Affairs.
Royal Decrees have the force of law, and must be implemented. A Royal Decree becomes state policy, domestic and military. It affects the Median State in whichever area of life it is geared toward.
The King has the right of veto.
He may veto any bill passed by the Governing Council, House of Nobility and the Council of Representatives. He may veto decisions made by the Chancellor and overturn them.
Yet, a 70% majority in each of the three legislative bodies of the State: the Governing Council, the House of Nobility and the Council of Representatives, may overturn his decisions. While he may counter with a Royal Decree, it will then be the sole prerogative of the Median League's Supreme Court to reach a compromise.
Only the Median King may make decisions that affect the Royal Family, as well as his extended family. Whom they should marry, where they should live, how much allowances they are entitled to, and what role they should play is the sole prerogative of the Median King. Any interference in the affairs of the Royal Family, and the Dynasty, will be viewed as sabotage, which is one of the crimes requiring the death penalty, along with terrorism, treason, and sedition.

THE QUEEN: The Queen is not the Mother of the Nation. That title is reserved for the mother of the King, the reigning monarch.
The Queen is however the Mother of the Karasai, and Leader of the House of Nobility.

She approves the appointments of members to the Nobility, or she may reject their appointments. She appoints the Ethnic Princes/Princesses, the Regional Princes/Princesses, as well as any person the Median King suggests to be included in the ranks of the Median Nobility.
The Queen leads the day-to-day operations of the House of Nobility.
Only the offspring of the Median Queen, as the King's Primary Wife, may ascend the Throne. The offspring of consorts may, in the event that there are no children of the Queen, ascend the Throne.

THE CROWN PRINCE: The Crown Prince of the Median League has the title of Pharaoh. This, not only to garner support from sun worshippers, but also to tie in with the Median League's civilizational anchor, which is the attempt to resurrect Ancient Egyptian civilization for the purposes of anchoring the Karasai.
The Pharaoh has no political power, not until appointed by the King to represent the Median State and the monarchy.
The Pharaoh ascends to the Median Throne, as King, not as Pharaoh. The new King's eldest son, or any child he appoints, may then be Crown Prince/Princess and receive the title of Pharaoh.

THE GOVERNING COUNCIL: The Governing Council has 70 members. Of those, 40 members are Christian, while the remaining 30 are sun worshippers, followers of the Ancient Egyptian sun-god, Ra.
The Head of the Governing Council is always a woman, and serves in that position upon death, resignation or impeachment. She is a Christian, and is leader of the Christian Faction.
The Deputy Head of the Governing Council is a follower of the Ancient Egyptian sun-god, Ra. He is always a man, and may ascend to the position of Head of the Governing Council only for a period of 7 years, divided by two terms of 42 months each.
In the event that he cannot complete his term, the Governing Council elects a leader to complete the term; that person will be ineligible to serve in either positions, thereafter.
The Head of the Governing Council, as well as the Deputy Head of the Governing Council, are all appointed by the Supreme Court, yet with the approval of the Median King.
The Head of the Governing Council is known as the Princess/Prince of Krotoa, a Principality comprising the Cape Metropolitan Area. She rules the Principality directly.
The Deputy Head of the Governing Council is known as the Duke of Krotoa.

THE ETHNIC LEADERS: Every leader of every ethnicity in the Median League shall have a Prince/Princess, who are meant to secure the interests of that ethnicity. They are supposed to represent their own, and speak for them in the House of Nobility, led by the Queen.
The leaders of these ethnicities are affirmed by the Queen, when they are elected by their ethnicities. Once elected, their successors are from their own bloodlines. The ethnicity may decide whether they have an elected leadership or an hereditary one, always from the same bloodline of the first Prince/Princess. These Ethnic Princes/Princesses may choose a group of their ethnicity, and allow their own people to elect some in order to represent them in the Council of Representatives (the CORE).
Once elected, their final affirmation comes from the Ethnic Prince/Princess.

Only a total 5 members of each Principality may represent each ethnic group in each Principality, while the amount differs as a percentage of the population in the National CORE.
For instance, an ethnic group elects their 5 members in the Principality of Krotoa. Yet, as a percentage of the Krotoan population, they make up only 5%. Therefore, as the total amount of members in the National CORE is only 200, the amount of members from that Principality, of that ethnic group may be less, or more, depending on the amount of ethnicities, coupled with the number of principalities, and the total population, having taken into account.
So, an ethnic group may have 5 members in the Regional CORE, yet in the National CORE, their representation may only be 1 or 2 members, or even more than 5, if the ethnicity is big enough.
Although, it is in the Median State's interest, as well as the Karasai, to have ethnicities spread across the League, helping to avert a challenge to the Karasai, which will, of course, result in collective punishment.
The following applies to brown people, who are muslim:
The convert themselves: never eligible for Karasai or Imperial Tribe, regardless of sincerity.
Their children: eligible for Karasai only, if raised entirely Christian, with no Islamic cultural practice in the home.
Their grandchildren: eligible for Imperial Tribe consideration, subject to the standard Karasai criteria.

REGIONAL LEADERS: These can only be Christian Coloured/ Sun-worshipping Coloured(Khoikhoiin and San), or Karasai members.
There can be no other representatives of any other race to lead the core 13 principalities of which the Median League is made up.
The position is hereditary. Only members of the Regional Royal Family, may choose their next leaders. These may be passed on from father to son, mother to daughter, or any member of the bloodline of the first Regional Leader. The person is then affirmed by the Queen, with the approval, accompanied with a Royal Decree, from the King.
Must there be Mayors? Must the Median State not use this opportunity to cut the public wage bill? Must positions in the public sector not be kept at a minimum to save money?
Of course. Deep cuts need not happen. Yet certain positions need not exist.
It is not necessary to have Mayors and Deputy Mayors. City and Town Managers can do the job just fine.

HOUSE OF NOBILITY: The Median Queen leads the House of Nobility. The amount of members is not defined.
This is the traditional arm of the Median State. Unlike the Governing Council (religious arm) and Council of Representatives (elected arm), the House of Nobility has no term limits, and appointments are entirely hereditary, inherited from one generation to the next, in the legitimate bloodline.
The House of Nobility has legislative powers and may pass bills.

COUNCIL OF REPRESENTATIVES (CORE): The elected arm of the legislative bodies, terms are limited to only two, of three years each.

The Representatives can be recalled by the Ethnic Princes, or by a popular vote, called for by the Ethnic Princes.

THE ECONOMY: The Median League is a consumption-led economy. It is the main reason for the promotion of mass immigration of selected, targeted groups such as: the LGBTQ community in and out the US military, the homeless and orphan population of the US, those skilled individuals saddled with student debt in the US, the migrant both legal and illegal, vetted in the US, Federal US government workers, the Romani/Gypsies in Europe.
The Median League endeavours to focus, with State support, on three core sectors: 1. tourism 2. agriculture and mining 3. ICT and AI.

THE THREE EAGLE'S ALLIANCE (TEA): The TEA is a proposed military and foreign policy alliance between the United States, Israel and the Median League.
It gives, not the US alone, but TEA as a whole, basing rights at the Simon's Town Naval Base, granting access to safeguard the Cape of Good Hope choke point, and control of the entry to the South Atlantic.

SOUTHERN TRANSATLANTIC PARTNERSHIP (STAP): The STAP is a free trade alliance between Africa, Latin America, the Caribbean and, by extension, the US and Israel. It's core, foundational basis is the free movement of goods, services, and people.

THE THREE OCEANS ALLIANCE (TOA): This body includes Japan and Korea, along with ASEAN, and the member regions of the STAP.

THE KARASAI PROJECT: The Karasai Project is a bloodline alliance between the Christian Coloured (Khoikhoiin and San) with the Japanese (particularly the Burakumin, yet not excluding the Yamato, nor Ainu), the Koreans(the North included), the Han(from the mainland, Taiwan, and overseas population), the Mongolians, and some nations in Southeast Asia (excluding the Malaysians and the Indonesians).
These Karasai will be part of the Imperial Tribe.
Those who are brown Christian, and marry and produce offspring with the above groups, may also be Karasai, yet not from the Imperial Tribe.
The Karasai Project is a rescue plan to preserve the bloodline of the Ancient Khoikhoiin and San, strengthening it with targeted population groups with a similar appearance, as near as possible.
It is State-sponsored ethno-engineering of a new people-group.

THE TWO SEXES: The Median League recognize two sexes: a biologically born male, and a biologically born female.
The Median League does not prevent trans individuals from participating in the Median State, although State-sponsored sex changes will not be free, it must be paid by the individual attempting to undergo this procedure, either through private funding, or a State loan.
Gay marriage is legal. Yet, only in courts, and recognized by the Median State. Religious institutions need not be involved.

THE SILVER CREDIT: The Silver Credit is the currency of the Median League. It is backed by the value of proven extractable resources within the borders of the Median League.

THE STATE-SPONSORED RELIGIONS: The two State-sponsored religions in the Median League is Christianity and sun worship.
The Karasai are bound by the worship of only one of these two Deities: Jesus Christ or Ra.
The Median State funds missionary activity of these two religions, through the Governing Council.

IMMEDIATE MEASURES TO REMEDY CRONIC UNEMPLOYMENT
The regions of the Median League has about 310 000, public sector workers. These include teachers, nurses, doctors, clerks, judges, magistrates, elected officials, etc. The current public sector wage bill amounts to R123 billion/$7,6 billion.
If a public sector pay cut of 25% were introduced and implemented for public sector workers, and a 40% pay cut for elected officials, savings would amount to R31,4 billion/$1,9 billion. Those savings can then be used to permanently employ 348,889 men and women, employed in public works projects, such as reforestation, water and sanitation, and maintenance, at an average salary of R7,500.
These measures will bring immediate relief to unemployed people, helping to put food on the table, cutting joblessness, without the Median State having to lend, or print any additional funds.

FUNDING THE KARASAI PROJECT AND IT'S ESTABLISHMENTS, AS WELL AS FUNDING ESTABLISHMENTS FOR OTHER ETHNIC GROUPS
As you know, the Karasai Project is the foundational basis of the Median State. It is a bloodline alliance between the Christian Coloured (Khoikhoiin and San), and specific peoples and nations in East and Southeast Asia.
Karasai Establishments, are small to medium sized businesses, where the entire output is bought by the Median State, at market rates.
But, the Karasai are not the only people living in the Median League. To foster ethnic unity, the Median State must also make funding available for other ethnic groups to found their own establishments. The output of which, can only be sold into the private sector, at market rates.
But how will these Establishments be funded?
VAT in the regions of the Median League, at a rate of 15%, would yield R112,6 billion/$7,1 billion.
We propose, that 40% of this money, some R45,5 billion be invested in the Karasai Establishments, in a bid to provide economic incentives for the Karasai Project. A further 40% should be made available for other ethnic groups, hoping to establish their own establishments. 12% will be made available for entrepreneurs, start-ups, and other business ventures. 5% will be made available for the Governing Council. 1% is offered to the Median King. 1% to the Royal Family. And another 1% will go toward the Nobility.

SOVEREIGN WEALTH FUND (SWF)
All State-owned assets, must be transferred to the Median League's Sovereign Wealth Fund (SWF). These include airports, ports, roads, bridges, buildings (occupied or vacant), schools, hospitals, mining operations etc. These will then be leveraged in order to raise capital to acquire the private interests in oil and gas ventures, companies engaged in rare earth element extraction, diamond mines, etc. These shall be bought, at market rate by the SWF, which will be managed by the Median State, via the Department of Finance and Commerce.

THE STATE BANK
We are also proposing the establishment of a State Bank.
But, we will pursue a totally cashless economy through the introduction of the card-system.
This card-system shall employ blockchain, biometric screening, facial recognition technology, even the blood type, medical history, extract the financial history all customers, as well as the work and educational history of all card holders. This card is also the identity document of the holder. It will be equipt with a tracker. The movements of the holder, as well as financial history, personal information, medical history, will be available to the Three Eagle's Alliance (TEA).
All private, public, individual, NGO, NPO transactions must go through the State Bank. We must prevent capital flight, tax evasion, terror financing, and other economic crimes that rob nations of meaningful tax monies due both the State and citizen. Of course, there will be no tax returns. And the share split in the State Bank is as follows:
51% Sovereign Wealth Fund
30% to help supplement the National Budget
9% toward the Karasai Project and it's Establishments
10% toward the funding of establishments for other ethnic groups in the Median League

The Median State is responsible for creating access toarkets in the TEA, STAP, and TOA, for Median League companies.
With these measures, we believe, that wealth can be distributed as equally as possible, without raising additional capital.

We believe these measures will go a long way to secure employment and help put food on the table, and bring meaningful change.

For oil and gas, the total government take is 51%. Royalties at 5%, with CIT at 15%.

For mining, royalties are at 5%, CIT at 15%, and the State option at 10%.

The Karasai Project, with it's Establishments, calls for small to mid scale licenses.
These are for certain minerals, only.
The structure shall be that of community co-ops, State technical support and State-owned processing, with guaranteed buyers and environmental standards.
